In 1966 Margaret Petty spent many hours gathering information about East Lake Cemetery. At the time it was overgrown and vandalised. We were there many days searching old stones and making maps. Mrs. Petty worked actively with the American Legion and others to get the City of Birmingham to provide perpetual care of this old historical cemetery. In 1967 the deed was given to the city by the then owner Olen Kelso.

Margaret Ann Webb was born in the East Lake Community on November 4, 1887. Her parents were Benjamin Thomas and David Duella (Jones) Webb. They were charter members of East Lake Methodist Church and are buried in East Lake Cemetery. She married Wiley Brent Petty and raised her children in this section of Birmingham.

This is a compilation of her notes and maps. I believe they furnish information not to be found elsewhere.

Past And Present

Names and dates that are part of Birmingham's early history are recorded in stone as a part of the old East Lake Cemetery.

Here, many of the pioneers of the eastern section of the city are buried, the trees above them framing the bell tower of the modern East Lake Methodist Church.

Those who lie here did changes that would come a resting place.

This is still another link and present in a city yet to

We must preserve symbols we look to the future.

VICTIM OF VANDALS—Efforts are being made by interested citizens to get the city to take over care of old East Lake Cemetery, which pre-dates the Civil War. The old cemetery is being overrun by weeds and is falling victim to vandals.

RAVAGED BY TIME—Time is taking its toll at the Old East Lake Cemetery. As shown above, weeds and tall grass obscure many of the monuments.

City May Rescue Second Cemetery

BY BEN HOGAN

Birmingham may soon rescue another historical landmark from near-oblivion.

Old East Lake Cemetery, the final resting place for many Alabama Civil War veterans and early prominent citizens, has been the victim of vandals, weeds and other ravages of time.

But, with last year's fight to save Elyton Cemetery still fresh in memory, initial steps have been taken to save the East Lake Cemetery too.

Mainly due to efforts of American Legion Post 43, Oliver R. Kellso, who was willed the cemetery property, and City Councilman Liston Corcoran, the Birmingham Legan Dept. is now tracing the legal background of the property with the hope of eventually getting it care taken over by the city. Similar action resolved the Elyton Cemetery problem last year.

The city was able to restore that cemetery to good condition after its ownership rights were turned over to the public.

East Lake Cemetery is suffering from many things, but the worst by far is vandalism. Vandals continuously turn over, steal or deface monuments. Bottles, beer cans and garbage litter the cemetery. Weeds and tall grass have almost completely taken over.

Exactly how the City of Birmingham would go about cleaning up the cemetery is still vague. Maintenance might be turned over to the Alabama State Fair Authority, as Elyton Cemetery.

John C. Henley, president of the Birmingham Historic Society, has suggested that the city provide adequate funds and give the administration to the Oak Hill Cemetery authority.

Established in 1800's Regardless of the method of saving East Lake Cemetery, one thing is sure — many think it should be saved. They say it's part of the historical fabric of Birmingham.

The cemetery was established in the early 1800's by Richard Wood, a plantation owner in the Jones Valley area, who used the one-acre area to bury his family and its slaves.

In 1874 the land was given to Ruhama Baptist Church, Alabama's first Baptist church.

In 1886 the cemetery was given to W. A. Williams who had been a sergeant in Co. C 20th Alabama Infantry, Confederate States of America.

The property has since been owned by several families, Mr.
Kelso being the present owner.

Prominent persons buried there include A. R. Montague, one of the first presidents of Howard College (now Samford U.); Dr. J. H. Finch, founder of East Lake Methodist Church and S. Palmer, founder of the East Lake Athenaeum — (The building is now a Catholic orphanage).

Other stones carry names of
R. N. McKinley, awarded the Southern Cross of Honor;
James D. Truss, Birmingham
City Commissioner; Dr. Capers
C. Jones, Co. D, 62nd Alabama
Infantry, CSA, and E. J. Robinson, judge and one of the first mayors of East Lake.

In all, about 50 Confederate veterans are buried there, along with many Spanish-American War and World War I veterans and several hundred other persons.

At East Lake—

Help Is Offered For Old Cemetery

BY BEN HOGAN

Publication of the plight of East Lake Cemetery has begun to spark interest of Birmingham citizens.

The cemetery, resting place of many early settlers of Birmingham including an early Howard College president and more than 50 Confederate veterans, has been ravaged by vandals and time. The Post-Herald ran an article with a series of pictures of the cemetery June 21.

Yesterday, the Birmingham Genealogical Society contacted Mayor Boutwell to donate $50 to a restoration program.

The society letter to the mayor follows:

"After reading an account of the East Lake cemetery in The Birmingham Post-Herald, we of the Birmingham Genealogical Society deeply urge you to consider this cemetery as historically significant.

"We of our society are keenly aware of its historical value, and in view of this hereby make a donation of $50 toward the restoration program and sincerely hope others will follow suit.

"We hope your decision will be in favor of perpetual care of this cemetery and it will be brought to the attention of the public that our city has set aside an additional landmark for generations to come.

"We owe this small tribute to the pioneer settlers of our city. Let this gesture become a part of our centennial celebration.

"We await your decision and direction as to how our contribution should be made."

The mayor and City Council could vote to care for the cemetery under a section of the State Code.

Last year the city adopted the Elyton Cemetery which is now attractively maintained.

Clearly, the city cannot maintain every cemetery within its limits. But many Birmingham citizens feel the East Lake Cemetery is worthy of preservation because of its historical significance to this area.

Cemetery Group Forms

BY DICK JOHNSON

First steps in restoration of East Lake Cemetery were taken yesterday with formation of a special committee for that purpose.

About 50 persons from 19 different churches and civic organizations met at the American Legion Hall, 6830 2nd-av. s. Their aim is to find some way for the City of Birmingham to take over and maintain in good condition the run-down cemetery.

It was decided by the new group — to be called the Committee for Restoration and Maintenance of East Lake Cemetery — to draw up a request to be put to Birmingham City Council for discussion and action.

Makes Proposal

The proposal, offered by Raymond Rowell who worked on restoration of Elyton cemetery, would be based on a state law which allows interested parties to contract with the city to maintain cemeteries.

Mr. Rowell also offered the suggestion that the committee use the "prescription approach." He said if the cemetery had offered "unimpeded public use for more than 20 years," the city could legally take over the cemetery.

Liston Corcoran, Birmingham city councilman who was present at the meeting, called the East Lake cemetery, "the biggest eyesore in this part of town."

Mr. Corcoran said it would be almost an "impossibility" to trace owners of all the lots in the cemetery.

The cemetery was inherited by Mrs. Olon Kelso from her grandfather.

Committee Named

A sub-committee was appointed by newly-elected Chairman John Winningham to draw up the request and call a meeting after its work is completed.

On the committee are Judge Tom Huey, Mr. Winningham, Wade Fadely, Marsh Acker, D. R. Phares, Mrs. W. S. Malone, and Olon Kelso.

Officers of the new organization, besides Mr. Winningham, are Mr. Acker, vice chairman, and Dudley Lankford, secretary-treasurer.

Twenty-eight Woodlawn School juniors and seniors have cleaned half the cemetery in time off from school and part-time jobs. Members of Distributive Education Club of America are the clean-up of the historic East Lake Cemetery as their civic project last fall. They didn't know what they were getting into.

The first thing was work — hard, dirty, back-breaking work.

The second thing was history — right there to read on the tombstones before their eyes.

ARTHUR GIBBS, teacher of one of the DE classes, is almost as enthusiastic about the project as the students.

"It took us several weeks to clear away the bottles, cans, branches and brush," he said. "We had to wait until frost killed part of the vegetation before we could start. They have all been here on their days off since then, except when it rained too hard or froze them out."

They piled the trash on the street side of the broken-down fence and it took a five-man crew on a city trash truck to haul it away.

The young people hadn't worked too many days until they started reading the tombstones. That sent them scurrying for the history books.

ONE CLEARLY-LETTERED gravestone proclaims that William Turner was born in 1768 and died in 1836. The kids figure he was 31 years old when George Washington became President.

They found graves of more than 70 Civil War veterans and the grave of a former Samford University (then Howard College) president.

Robert Turner, vice president of the club, is looking for the family Bible to see if he might be a descendant of the William Turner buried there in 1836.

He has been to the City Council to ask them to "take it over and keep it up." Or if they can't do that, "to give us some help, like a fence around it or a crane to lift some of the tombstones."

Councilman Liston Corcoran says there are legal problems, but that the city's legal department is "looking into it."

Olin Kelso, 7820 10th Ave., South, was willed the cemetery by his father-in-law who may have owned the last lots for sale. He is willing to deed his interest to the city, according to Mr. Corcoran.

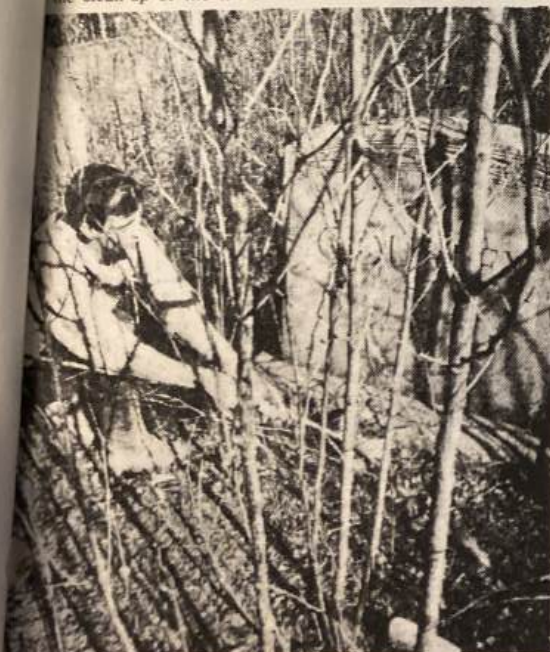

"But that doesn't make provisions for families who still own a lot or more in the cemetery," Corcoran said.

The Birmingham Genealogical Society presented a $50 check to the club to help with the reclamation project. Norman Mosley, the other DE teacher, thinks other individuals may want to contribute money or materials.

Some think the East Lake cemetery predates the Elyton cemetery, taken over by the city last year because of its historical value.

IS THIS HOW BIRMINGHAM HONORS ITS FOREBEARERS?

—About 75 Confederate veterans, an early Howard College president and many pioneer settlers of Birmingham are buried in the East Lake Cemetery, pictured above. Their graves—what you can see of them—are marked by toppled and broken tombstones, the work of time and vandals. The City Council could restore this cemetery as they did the Elyton Cemetery last year.

Fate Of Old Cemetery Up To Mayor

Lake Cemetery now up to take the picture just as it did the Elyton Cemetery last year. Clearly the City of Birmingham cannot maintain every served.

Mayor Albert Boutwell, said Councilman Liston Corcoran yesterday, is now considering whether or not the cemetery should be considered historically significant.

If he decides it is, and so recommends to the City Council, an Alabama state law will permit the City of Birmingham to keep perpetual care of the cemetery—as it agreed to do for the Elyton Cemetery last year.

For over six years now, residents in the East Lake area have attempted to persuade the City of Birmingham to maintain the cemetery grounds.

Some Own Plots

Some of these residents own burial plots in the devastated cemetery; others have relatives buried there.

But most residents are simply interested because of two other reasons: (1) The sight of the cemetery, covered with beer cans, litter and undergrowth, is a blight to the beauty of Birmingham; (2) In the cemetery rest about 75 Confederate veterans, one of the first presidents of Howard College and other prominent citizens in the early history of the Birmingham area.

About eight weeks ago, a group of East Lake residents had an appointment with Mayor Boutwell. At that time, the Mayor said he would take the matter into consideration.

The group of citizens had referred the Mayor to Title 37, sec. 479 of the State Code, entitled Contract For Care and Maintenance Authorized.

Provide For Care

This section, a judge has said, provides for Birmingham or any other city to be able to maintain a cemetery that is either within the city limits or is owned by the city.

Not only in East Lake Cemetery well within the city limits, but deed holder Olin R. Kelso

NATURE'S SHROUD — The tombstone at East Lake Cemetery pictured above is at least in one piece—one of the few that are. In the cemetery, under the beer cans and undergrowth, rest pioneer settlers of Birmingham. Will the City of Birmingham restore East Lake Cemetery as it did Elyton Cemetery last year?

FACE-LIFTING SCHEDULED — Birmingham's historic East Lake Cemetery, an eyesore for several years, will soon be cleaned and completely renovated with a $10,000 appropriation from the Birmingham City Council.

City Will Give $10,000 For Renovating Cemetery

BY BARBARA CASSON

The unsightly East Lake Cemetery is due for complete renovation with a $10,000 appropriation from the Birmingham City Council, according

CASSON and will make recommendations to Mayor Albert Bout-to Councilman Liston A. Corcoran. Corcoran and Council President M. E. Wiggins are currently studying what improvements are needed well in the next few weeks.

"It will be at least one or two weeks before there will be any visible signs of improvement at the cemetery," Wiggins said.

Corcoran said it would take more money to do all the work that needs to be done.

"The cemetery needs a wall or fence surrounding it, adequate lighting and drainage," he said.

Passersby are now confronted with a half-block cemetery of overturned and broken headstones at Division-av. and 78th-st. Many grave sites, some of prominent early East Lake families, are entirely nm A special program of looked and strangled in a mass of broken tree branches, bushes and grass.

School children stroll pathways through the grounds and what remains of the gate entrance now hangs rustily neglected.

Corcoran commended the Woodlawn High School students who have helped in cleaning part of the grounds.

"They have been helpful in cutting down the amount of work that has to be done and the cost of repairs," he said. Corcoran said that he would like to see other civic groups participating in the clean-up project.

City To Take Over East Lake Cemetery

The city Tuesday will become the caretaker of historic but long forgotten East Lake Cemetery.

City Council, which approved spending $10,000 to spruce up the final resting place of Civil War veterans and former mayors, is expected to accept from Olen Roy Kelso and Marjorie Smith Kelso the deed to the cemetery.

Already some $3000 to $4000 has been spent on the cemetery, according to Councilman Liston Corcoran who pushed for the council appropriation.

"It's in excellent shape," Mr. Corcoran said. "The brush has been cleaned out, the old dead trees removed and some monuments set upright again.

"I do think there should be some permanent fences and walls put up around it," Corcoran said.

"I understand also that a man might be hired to give it year around care," he said.

"But right now it's not such an eyesore," Corcoran added.

Boutwell may recommend city take over cemetery

Mayor Albert Boutwell may recommend that the city take over the perpetual care of the old East Lake Cemetery as a historical landmark.

For more than six years residents in East Lake have tried to get the city to take over the cemetery which has become an eyesore and target for vandals.

City Councilman Liston A. Corcoran Sr. said the mayor is considering the matter under the same setup as Elyton Cemetery is now being cared for.

Most of the residents in East Lake have various reasons for wanting the cemetery cleaned up.

SOME OWN burial plots in the devastated cemetery and others have relatives buried there.

Among those buried there are 75 Confederate veterans, one of the first presidents of Samford (Howard College) University and other prominent citizens of Birmingham history.

The city can assume responsibility of the cemetery under a section of the state law.

LOOKING BETTER—Birmingham city workmen are getting historic East Lake Cemetery into better shape by cutting grass, clearing brush and righting overturned tombstones.

In East Lake—

City Workmen Slowly Giving New Face To Old Cemetery

Historic East Lake Cemetery is slowly but surely putting on a new face with help from Birmingham work crews who are cutting away years of weeds and tangled brush and shaping up shade trees.

For several weeks, trucks and workers have been moving in and out of the front gates. Tombstones have been righted, grass has been cut, dead trees and branches have been removed. With work progressing as it is now, before long the site will be a pride of East Lake rather than an eyesore.

Eventually the Birmingham City Council plans to sink $10,000 into the renovation program. This will include a new wall or fence surrounding the grounds, adequate lighting and drainage.

Because the cemetery is a part of the historic fabric of Birmingham, the city hopes to keep it in good condition continually.

Originally owned in 1800 by Richard Wood, a plantation owner in the Jones Valley area, the cemetery contains about 50 Confederate, Spanish American, World War I and World War II soldiers.

Prominent persons buried there include a former president of Samford University, founder of the East Lake Methodist Church, founder of the East Lake Atheneum which is now a Catholic orphanage and one of the first mayors of East Lake.

Grateful

We are exceedingly grateful to all concerned for the progress now being under way to restore the historical East Lake Cemetery to the rightful care it so richly deserves.

It has been a long time to get the action needed for this worthy project. Definite good toward this end was formulated with the naming of the committee for restoration and maintenance of the East Lake Cemetery on February 6, 1966 at the American Legion Hall, 6830 Second av. s.

This committee is grateful to City Councilman Liston Corcoran for his efforts at the City Hall to start the ball rolling to bring this project to a reality.

There is much more to be done as regards the historical aspects of this cemetery. It is suggested that the interested genealogical societies and those who have compiled historical records of the deceased resting there should form an ad hoc committee to compare notes and put the facts of their findings before the public for enlightenment on the significance of the importance of the deceased in founding the nucleoid of metropolitan Birmingham.

A lady who phoned said it would be very appropriate to have a monument bearing a plaque with the names of the war veterans since the War of 1812 to the Vietnam casualties (if any) in commemoration to their service to this nation.

Rep. John H. Buchanan Jr., did make a sincere effort to have East Lake Cemetery set up as a national land mark. The national park service criteria for park lands does not include cemeteries unless therein are persons of transcendent importance to public good as a whole.

The lack of a complete history of the pioneers in this hallowed ground was the reason for the NPS to reject Congressman Buchanan's application.

My congressman is interested in the East Lake Cemetery. As an alumnus of the historical Howard College Divinity School he told me he would gladly conduct re-dedication services of this cemetery if the public so desired it be done after restoration. It is befitting that this burial ground be rededicated to the Good Shepherd.

The city program is appreciated, indeed. We the people of East Lake are wholeheartedly grateful and do so hope all the people of the entire metropolitan area will realize that this project is their concern, too.

The next move to complete this worthy project is for the civic groups ad hoc committee to confer together and establish historical data to convince the city officials and the public in general that the cemetery is historically important to this area where so little of authentic sites are extant.

Cemetery Goes Back Many Years

In submitting historical data to Ben Hogan as regards East Lake cemetery it was done so in an effort to show definitely that the East Lake Cemetery antedates the Elyton cemetery by far.

The account of Lala Caldwell Palmer offered proof (from her father's records) that this place was a burial ground in 1822.

It stands to reason that this area was long settled before Elyton was founded. The migration south came from the Tennessee Trail and the Georgia Road. A watering place was at a spring that today feeds the Cascade Plunge pool.

Roadways get altered with the establishment of a city, of course, but the old Tennessee Trail came in over Second Avenue South. There was a "rest stop" at the springs at Sherman Oaks on the ground where Howard College was located.

There does not seem to be any argument to refute the historical significance of East Lake cemetery.

Help Is Urged For Cemetery

On a dismal day in a forlorn cemetery a gracious lady was laid to rest. On Veteran's Day, 1966, the beloved Hattie Eunice Williams was interred in the historic East Lake Cemetery not far from the monument to the veterans of four American wars.

Miss Williams was a proficient writer, and monetary awards went into the project to erect the veteran's memorial commemorating those who fell in the Civil War, Spanish-American War, World War I and World War II.

It was Miss Williams' wish to be interred in East Lake Cemetery with her people. Her mother was the former Mary Wood. Woodlawn community was named for Richard Wood who established the burial ground, now known as the old East Lake Cemetery, where he and his family with faithful slaves were buried in the Southland's antebellum years.

The historic cemetery has received the mortal remains of many illustrious early settlers who shaped the destiny of Alabama. East Lake Cemetery lacked but little to comply with the criteria of the national park service to be designated as a national landmark.

Not having the complete history of the honored citizens interred there prevented the NPS recognition because the criteria definitely requires whom of these many were historical figures of transcendent importance.

Any person having data on this subject should contact the National Park Service through their congressional representa-

Richard Wood and Harriet Bradford were owners of a large tract of land lying in Jones VALley and reaching from what is now 80th street to about 76th street and probably from 1st avenue to the crest of the mountains on the south side.

Richard Wood died in 1865 leaving a wife and nine children. She was known as "Aunt Harriet". She was a staunch member of Ruhama Baptist Church.

She donated the land to build the original church on second avenue between 77th and 78th streets. also the land for Howard College in 1874. The land on which the new Ruhama Baptist at 79th and 2nd Ave. SO was donated by the family of Richard and Harriet Wood. In 1886 Ruhama Church sold the acre tract to East Lake Cemetery stockholders association. Mr. William Hunt was president and Mr. A. A. Vines was secretary. The association paid $150. for the cemetery. The undertaking was not a success financially and Mr. W. A. Williams obtained the title to the cemetery. His wife was a daughter of Richard and Harriet Wood.

Mr. Williams kept the cemetery until shortly before his death in 1931.

He sold his rights to Mr. John Lavender. who held it until his death.

His grand daughter Marjorie Kelso was the only heir. Mr. Kelso has held title to the cemetery for several years.
